❋ Crescent Staccato

-The greatest robot ever made... last century.

Description:

A diminutive dome shaped flying assistant, the Crescent Staccato is hailed as one of the most reliable mechanoids around, and they are often favored by those who prefer quality machinery over flashy features.
The Crescent Staccato is not naturally equipped to fly in space, but can be upgraded to handle such environments. They are naturally submersible.

Strategy:

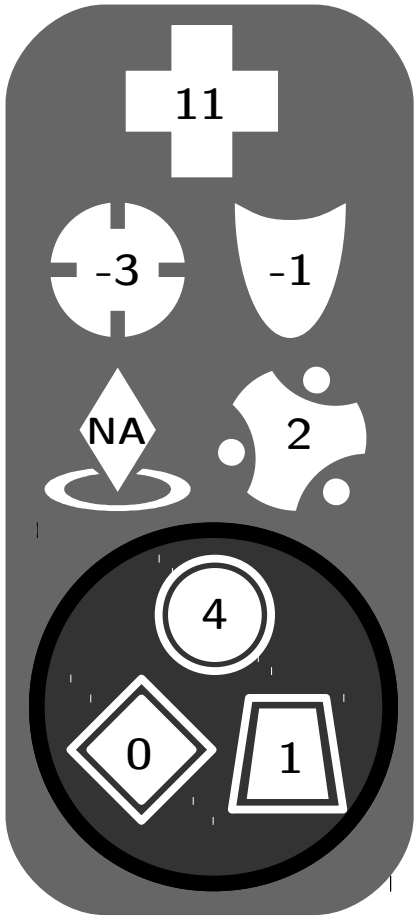

As a class, the Crescent Stacatto's primary function is to improve the power and reach of both nanotech users and utility characters such as infiltrators or engineers. The Staccato acts as a scout, and allows such characters to interfere remotely while safely out of harms way.

Starting Bonuses:

- ☐ +3 companion charges per day.
- ☐ +2 player skills per level.
- ☐ 2 companion skill per level
- ☐ You gain +2 starting ranks in two skills of your choice.
- ☐ Your Stacatto has +3 starting ranks in three skills of your choice, +1 in all others.

B.A.B.E.L.

Aerobatics represents your Staccato's ability to fly quickly and deftly, often used in place of agility, squirm or stealth.
B.A.B.E.L. (Beep and boop electronic Language) is used when socializing with other droids.

Companion Name: _____

Companion details:

Answer one (or more) of the following backstory details.

Describe your companion's personality. How did it get its name?

What is your Staccato's current state of repair? Is it meticulously polished, or held together with duct tape? Does it have any unusual or distinguishing markings- if so, where from?

What do you have stored on the Staccato's hard drive? _____

How did you get this Crescent Staccato? Did you inherit it? If so, from who? Did you repair it from pieces in a junk shop? Are you old enough to have bought one new?

Helping Hands

Your Staccato now possesses a pair of helpful claws. This enables it to hack devices, pick locks, etc on your behalf, using your skill modifier. (With or without this feat, it is free to make such attempts using its own skill bonuses) Your Staccato is capable of assisting with any task where an extra pair of hands could be useful. It grants +3 when helping you, +2 when helping RADs, and other robotic drones, and +1 when helping others.

Encyclopedia

Your Staccato now contains a basic encyclopedia. If you have ten minutes spare you may refer to it. The Encyclopedia is assumed to pass all DC 15 knowledge checks.

Library

Requires: Encyclopedia

You may roll Research checks using the Staccato as if you had access to a medium sized library (doing so takes time, just as a library would). On taking this feat, you gain either, +2 research, +2 in a knowledge of your choice, +2 in a unique class skill of your choice, or check an extra box for a 'checkbox' ability (Research notes, experienced pilot, scorch together, etc.).

The Luggage

Requires: Any two Staccato feats

Your Staccato now contains one cubic meter of "hammerspace". You can store items inside, (but not sentient beings), and they cannot be found without the Staccato's permission. Accessing the Luggage space costs one unit of charge for each minute the hatch is open.

Feats and abilities in other classes which are specifically dedicated to equipment (Bullet Making, Tinkering, Prepared for Anything, etc) gain a +2 bonus (+2 bullets, craft, or survival, for example)

Tiny Spaceship

Your Staccato now contains pressure jets suitable for propelling itself and up to one humanoid on a spacewalk. Roll Aerobatics in place of Zero-G. When the Staccato fails a zero-G check, it may spend one charge to course correct and retroactively gain +5 on its roll. The Staccato carries one hours oxygen. Spacesuit not included.

Nanotech Compatible

Your nanotech charge and companion charge are now treated as a single collective pool, and can be used interchangeably.

Each time you spend charge you may re-roll one dice associated with the corresponding ability (skill checks, attack rolls, damage, etc).

Protege

Your social feats and abilities now apply to your Staccato whenever it is socializing with other droids. For example, if Familiarity grants you a bonus to soothe or persuade, it now grants your Staccato a B.A.B.E.L. bonus when soothing or persuading other droids.

Proxy

Requires: Any two Staccato feats

Abilities that require line of sight may now use your Staccato's line of sight. Similarly for distance or sound based limits.

If your Staccato has Helping Hands, it can reconfigure a Calibrist's weapon, or assemble a Tinker's gadgets on their owner's behalf.

If your Staccato is Nanotech Compatible, it can deliver nanotech abilities for you - EG, you may use Nanotech Infusion whenever either you OR your Staccato could touch the target.

When using your Staccato as a nanotech proxy, any time costs must be paid by both you and the Staccato. If an ability would prompt an AoO, both you and your Staccato prompt AoO. Charge need only be paid once.

Hologram Projector

At the cost of one charge, your Staccato can project a still silent image, producing the illusion of a solid object (DC 20 perception to recognize illusion). Images much larger than a person are lower quality and easier to recognize. Anyone getting between the image and the Staccato will ruin the effect. You may store up to three images in memory at a time, but will need access to the original object or scene in order to record them. Current images: _____

_____

_____

Moving Image

Requires: Hologram projector

You can now record and project up ten minutes of movement and sound. Your Staccato stores one recording at a time.

Current recording:

_____

True Image

Requires: Hologram projector + 2 feats, incompatible with false image

Images projected by your Staccato are verifiably true- in that anyone studying them will know that they are recordings of actual events.

False Image

Requires: Hologram projector + 2 feats, incompatible with true image

You can roll a craft check and deceive check with your Staccato to produce hologram images without access to original objects. Doing so takes considerable time, but can be rushed (at a cost to quality) The perception DC to overcome such images is the lower of the two skill checks. Your allies can not roll these skill checks on your behalf, but are allowed to assist (+2 bonus) if they have more ranks than you.
